Campolo, Middleton & Associates Adds New Partner and Changes Name

Patrick McCormick joins law firm and will focus on complex litigation

Bohemia, NY – Campolo, Middleton & Associates, LLP, a leading full-service Long Island law firm, has announced that Patrick McCormick has joined the firm as a partner. As of August 1, 2010, the firm's name has been changed to Campolo, Middleton & McCormick, LLP. McCormick, who lives in Kings Park, NY, previously was a partner at Certilman Balin Adler & Hyman, LLP. He will continue to focus his practice on complex commercial and real estate litigation matters.

"The firm could not be happier that Pat has decided to join us," said Joe Campolo, partner at Campolo, Middleton. "With his addition to our team, we continue to add depth to our sophisticated litigation practice, and can continue to provide the big firm quality with small firm value our clients have come to expect."

McCormick, who has practiced commercial and real estate litigation for almost 20 years, felt that market changes and client demand for more value made it timely to move to a smaller, boutique practice. "Here at Campolo, Middleton I will continue to provide the high quality service our clients deserve at a real value," said McCormick. "It's a win-win situation all around." Prior to joining Certilman, McCormick was with the Bronx County District Attorney's office in the Appeals Bureau.
