By LISA JOSEFAK

JOSEPH N. CAMPOLO, ESQ.

*Campolo, Middleton
& McCormick, LLP*

Joseph N. Campolo, Esq. is managing partner of Campolo, Middleton & McCormick, LLP in Bohemia. Campolo represents individuals and businesses in routine and complex legal matters.

Having broad experience in both commercial litigation and transactions, Joe's practice today focuses on business litigation (including RICO, anti-trust, securities, shareholder/member breakups, Intellectual Property, employment, contracts, UCC, non-compete and breach of fiduciary duty claims), as well corporate and commercial real estate transactions. Campolo has vast experience in forming companies, raising capital and ultimately helping those companies with a merger, acquisition, sale, or other liquidity event, as well as representing and advising the boards of those entities (for both for-profit and not-for-profit entities). He has successfully tried cases in state and federal Court, has been involved in numerous arbitrations and mediations, and has conducted administrative hearings before many federal and state agencies.

As clients enter into a growth cycle, Campolo advises them to make sure they have the appropriate capital and resources in place before accepting the larger orders. "Many more businesses fail because they grow themselves out of business then fail because lack of business," he said.

"Cash flow is paramount during growth, and one hiccup can mean the end of your business, Campolo said. "So, making sure that you have enough employees, strategic partners, and financing (including vendor financing) are paramount to avoid that hiccup."

Campolo served in the United States Marine Corps, then attended Stony Brook University and Fordham Law School. After practicing law at some of the largest law firms on Long Island, he became in-house general counsel to a national technology company and was promoted to President.

Campolo is a member of the Town of Brookhaven Small Business Advisory Council, and is on the faculty at Stony Brook University, where he teaches Business Law in the MBA Program. He has published articles and advisories in numerous publications and has appeared on many local television, newspaper and radio programs.

Campolo, Middleton & McCormick, LLP is a full-service law firm with the expertise and experience to represent clients in a wide variety of legal matters, including litigation and appeals, insurance, corporate and private equity, technology and intellectual property, government relations, employment, real estate, healthcare and bankruptcy law.
